GRAYLING MEETS

RIG CROWD OF ROOTERS 75 PRESIDENT DETERMINED TO STRONG ACCOMPANIED TEAM.

Grayling fans who accompanied the city base ball team to Cheboygan last Sunday had to watch the players go down to defeat, in one of the raggedest games they have played this season. It was their first defeat and alincluding ten games last season and the nine games they won this season. The score was 5 and 2 but it cannot be said that the better team won, as the five scores made by Cheboygan were wholly made on errors. Bad luck was surely with Grayling that day. "Babe" Laurant for the home team pitched good ball, but the sup-port his team mates handed him was uncalled for. He was in good form and deserved the fine support he has been given in previous games this year. He allowed but 6 hits, while Berkey for Cheboygan allowed 11.

McPhoe was the big noise of the day for the home team, getting three bits and cetting everything that care

WHY NOT BUY TIRES, TUBES AND SUPPLIES IN GRAYLING?

Mr. O. P. Schumann:

Dear Sir:-I read the article on the front page of the Avalanche by the Board of Trade last week, and con-sider same very good. I would like to add a few more remarks.

Garages and Tire repair shops have installed expensive machinery for mounting, and inflating tires for the convenience and berefit of their customers and vote there are no manual transfer and vote there are no manual transfer. tomers, and yet, there are some prom inent business men in this town that send their money to Chicago mail-or-cer houses for their tires, tubes and other supplies. U. S. INTERVENES IN COAL STRIKE

TAKE DRASTIC ACTION TO BRING SETTLEMENT.

Unless Operators and Strikers Come to Terms, Production of Coal by U. S. May Be Tried.

Washington-That President Harding is determined to take aggressive action to end the coal strike and bring about the resumption of full production of fuel, was disclosed Mon day night following a conference he had with Secretary of Labor Davis and John L Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

Mr. Harding's immediate endeavor is being directed toward bringing the miners and the operators into ference on a settlement of the wage dispute. He sounded Lewis on the acceptance of a compromise plan of negotiation which the miners' leader did not accept, but which the president asked Secretary of Commerce

One plan under consideration is to ask congress for legislation providing for compulsory arbitration of the differences between operators and min ers. It is suggested that the arbitral tribunal might take the form of the railway labor board. Lewis said the niners would oppose and resist any such measure.

As a last resort, the administration is prepared to consider government operation of the mines at least to the extent of opening them to all miners who desire to work and providing irmed forces for their protection.

WE HAVE STRUCK THE KEY NOTE TO THE TUNE OF "CO-OPERA-TION.

Our notes of last week produced results. Anyone who attended the last siness meeting will vouch for it. Fifty-three of our good citizens and business men turned out to attend the meeting Monday. We believe that meeting was one of the best of its kind ever held in Grayling. The spirit that prevailed indicates that our business men will be boosters. Every man left the meeting with a better feeling, and we believe a more determined effort at co-operation between our business men will be the result. It was predicted that this meeting would be a failure, but that wise guy was not present at the meeting. Old sores were opened, cleaned out and there isn't a question of doubt that they are going to be healed up in fine shaue. Some of our business men were out of town but others have shown an indifferent attitude. These men must line themselves up with the boosters who were present at the last meeting and get busy or they are going to be left in the rear of a good bunch of men who have started a push toward the front. There are about a hundred and and ten business and professional men in town and they must all get together and boost. Those who failed to attend will have to get in line.

We listened to some good talks by our real boosters, also those who are going to be real boosters. We are going to develop into a community of go-getters and there is no question about that as long as the spirit which was shown at the meeting prevails. Mr. M. Hanson started the speech making with an outline of what some of our objects are. He was followed in turn by Messrs Harry Simpson, Hans Petersen, R. D. Connine, Frank Tetu, J. H. Wingard, R. D. Bailey, James McDonald, C. A. Canfield, C. M. Morfit, F. R. Welsh, T. P. Peterson, J. C. Yahr, Ben Shore, Geo. Burke, N. Schjotz and others. Each one spoke on the subject of his own ideas and they were all good. Those who did not attend failed to hear some real speeches for the good of our community.

We are not going to stop now. The foundation has been started and we are going to keep building up, and from now on every business and professional man must be a booster and help build. Another meeting has been called for July 10th, same hour, same place, and those present at the last meeting have agreed to be in attendance. Those who were not at the last meeting, each man knows of his own failure, will be required at this next meeting. Last week we threatened to publish the names of those who did not attend but we are not going to do that yet. We are going to give them another chance to square themselves as we feel that the spirit will be contagious and they will attend our next meeting. The following business and professional men did attend:

A. J. Joseph. H. F. Peterson. E. J. Olson. านต่อคม. George Olson. O. P. Schumann M. Hanson. M. Atkinson C. M. Morfit. C. W. Peterson. Carl Sorenson. M. Landsberg. M. A. Bates. H. Parker. R. D. Connine Thos. Trudo. R D Railay Alfred Hanson Hans Christenson Bert Mitchell.

Cast your eyes over this list and you will find the boosters. These are the men who signified by their attendance that they are not dead ones. They have made known that they are willing to put their shoulder to the wheel and help boost our town. They are the business men who are entitled to the good will and patronage of our citizens at large. Their help in boosting Grayling will be a benefit to all.

Our business men are going to reach out and help the farmers of this county. A boost for the farmer is a boost for us all. Help them dispose of their products. Give him a market at home and he will come to Grayling instead of going in the opposite direction. We have a lot of good farmers in our county, they are all good people, and they need our help and we need the things they produce. Help the farmer to prosper and we will have prosperity in return. We are going to provide the farmer with a place to stable his teams, have his blacksmithing done and also a place where he can procure the necessary parts for his implements and where he can be supplied with his needs to work his farm. We have been slow in doing things for the farmer, but they are going to be pushed from now on. Our farmers are going to find a warmer welcome hereafter. At our meeting a committee of three were appointed with push the building of a barn and blacksmith shop.

BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT

WILLIAM MOSHIER UNDER AR-REST FOR SELLING MOON-

The examination of William Moshier, charged with selling "Moonshine" whiskey, held Wednesday before Justice Kraus, attracted quite a crowd and called out a large list of witness-

The principal witness was Robert Ziebell who stated under oath that Mr. Moshier had sold him whiskey upon several occasions.

Frank King, another witness, also swore that he purchased moonshine from Mr. Moshier. Mrs. Ziebell and daughter Miss Matilda, stated on the stand that they frequently saw per-sons entering the Moshier home and presumed they were there to purchase liquor. Similar statements were made by Mrs. Esbern Olson, Mrs. Philip Moran, Mrs. D. M. Howell and others, all of whom reside in the vicinity of the Moshier home.

The People were represented in the case by Prosecuting Attorney Fitch, as usual, and the defendant by Attorney Quay of Cheboygan. The latter is exceptionally clever and does not intend to overlook any loop holes whereby he may get his client out of trouble, and to the laymen in the art of criminal defense, might quite con-vince them that the People had no case at all Moshier was arrested last week Thursday and had been in jail up to Wednesday in default of $2000 oail. He was bound over to the cirsail. He was both over the chi-cuit court for trial and released on $500 bail. His case will probably not be heard until the October term of court as it is customary not to drav a jury for the July term.

How True It Is.

Herman Wendt sends us the following clipping from the Holstein-Friesian World, which exactly speaks my sentiments:

"The importance of making a start with good purebreds is well illustrated on the farm of Samuel Andrist of Mantorville, Minnesota, where the resent herd of 37 head is all descenied from one good purebred female purchased twenty-two years ago. Cushman Clothilde, the foundation cow of the Andrist herd, was not only an excellent producer but a repro-ducer as well, dropping five purebred heifer calves in the herd, all of which proved exceptional individuals. the past fifteen years over $10,000 worth of surplus stock has been sold from the herd despite the fact that no additional stock has been intro duced into the herd since its found ing other than the good purebred bulls which have always stood at the head of the herd. The herd today is valued conservatively at over-$10,000."

Nice Thing.

What a nice thing it would be for a father to buy his boy a purebred heifer calf. The farm would not miss the feed. The calf would become a cow almost before the family would realize it. The boy would take the farm. The better stock would do the farm good. The sales of surplus would make a fund to pay for the boy's Agricultural College course, or boy's Agricultural College course, or Winter Short Courses at the Agri-cultural College. Keeping of fine, purebred stock would develop finer traits of the

"LAND OF THE DRUM."

SYNOPSIS.—Wealthy and highly placed in the Chicago business world, Benjamin Corvet is something of a recluse and a mystery to his associates. After a stormy interview with his partner, Henry Spearman, Corvet seeks Constance. Sherrill, daughter of his other business partner, Lawrence Sherrill, and secures from her a promise not to marry spearman until he returns. He then disappears. Sherrill learns Corvet has written to a certain Alan Conrad, in Blue Rapids, Kansas, and exhibited strange agitation over the matter. Alan arrives in Chicago. From a statement of Sherrill it seems probable Conrad is Corvet's illestimates son. Corvet has deeded his house and its contents to Alan, who takes possession. That night Alan discovers a man ransacking Corvet's apartments. The intruder thinks Alan a ghost and raves of the "Miwaka." After a struggle the man escapes. Next day Alan learns from Sherrill that Corvet has deeded his entire property to him. Introduced to Spearman, Alan is astonished at the discovery that he is the man whom he had fought in his house the night before. Spearman laughs at and defles him. Spearman pains Constance's mind against Alan. Somebody tries to kill Alan in the night. Corvet's Indian servant, Wassaquam, telis Alan he believes his employer is dead. He also tells him the legend of the Indian drum, which according to old superatifion beats once for every life lost on the Great Lakes. Twenty years before, the great freighter Miwaka had gone down with twenty-five on beard, but the Drum had sounded for only twenty-four, leaving the inference that one person had been saved. Luke, who has long been blackmailing Corvet appears, talks mysteriously and dies.

But Luke had said nothing about Spearman. It had been Corvet, and Corvet alone, of whom Luke had spoken; it was Corvet whom he had accused; it was Corvet who had given him money. Was it conceivable, then, that there had been two such events in Corvet's life? That one of these events concerned the Miwaka and Spearman and some one—some one with a bullet hole above the eye" who had "got" Corvet; and that the sther event had concerned Luke and something else? It was not conceivable, Alan was sure; it was all one thing. If Corvet had to do with the Miwaka, then Luke had had to do with It too. And Spearman? But if Spearman had been involved in that guilty thing, had not Luke known it? Then why had not Luke mentioned Spearman? Or had Spearman not been realiy involved? Had it been, perhaps, only evidence of knowledge of what Corvet had done that Spearman had tried to discover and destroy?

Alan went to the door and opened tt, as he heard Spearman upon the steps again. Spearman waited only until the door had been reclosed behind him.
"Well, Conred, what was the idea of worlnging Miss Sherrill into this?" didn't bring her in; I tried the best I could to keep her out." "Out of what—exactly?"

"You know better than I do. You know exactly what it is. You know that man, Speerman; you know what he came here for. I don't mean money : I mean you know why he came here for money, and why he got it. I tried as well as I could, to make him tell me; but he wouldn't do it. There's disgrace of some sort here, of course disgrace that involves my father and.

I think, you too. If you're not guilty with my father, you'll help me now; if you are guilty, then, at least, your re-fusal to help will let me know that."

"I don't know what you're talking about. I told you this man may have been a wheelsman on the Corvet; I I don't even know that certainly, Of course, I knew Ben Corvet was paying blackmail; I've known for years that he was giving up money to some one. what.'

The strain of the last few hours was tsiling upon Alan; his skin flushed hot and cold by turns. He paced up and down while he controlled himself.

"That's not enough, Spearman," he said finally. "I--I've felt you, somehow, underneath all these things. The first time I saw you, you were in this house doing something you ought not to have been doing; you fought me then; you would have killed me rather than not get away. Two weeks ago some one attacked me on the street for robbery, they said: but I know it wasn't robbery-

"You're not so crazy as to be trying to involve me in that-

There came a sound to them from the hall, a sound unmistakably denoting some presence. Spearman jerked suddenly up; Alan, going to the door and looking into the hall, saw Wassa The Indian evidently had returned to the house some time before: he had been bringing to Alan now the accounts which he had settled. He seemed to have been standing in the came in now, looking inquiringly from one to the other of them "Not friends?" he inquired. "You if no one the Indian questioned "Yes?" It was plain that he not only believed but that believing gave him immense satisfaction. He took Alan's arm and led him into the smeller li brary. He knelt before one of the drawers under the bookshelves—the drawer. een examining when he had found Wassaquam watching him. He drew out the drawer and dumped its contents out upon the floor; he turned the drawer about then, and pulled the bottom out of it. Beneath the bottom which he had removed appeared now another bottom and a few sheets of paper scrawled in an uneven hand and with different colored inks.

At sight of them, Spearman, who had followed them into the room, uttered an oath and sprang forward. The Indian's small dark hand grasped Spearman's wrist, and his face twitched itself into a flerce grin which showed how little civilization had modified in him the aboriginal passions. But Spearman did not try to force his way; instead, he drew back suddenly.

Alan stooped and picked up the pa-pers and put them in his pocket. If the Indian had not been there, it to do that, he thought.

CHAPTER XI

The Land of the Drum.
Alan went with Wassaquam into the front library, after the Indian had shown Spearman out.

"This was the man, Judah, who came for Mr. Corvet that night I was hurt?' "Yes, Alan," Wassaquam sald.
"He was the man, then, who came here twice a year, at least, to see Mr. "Yes."

"I was sure of it," Alan said. "Can you tell me now why he came here, Judah?"

"I have told you I do not know," Wassaquam replied. "Ben always saw him; Ben gave him money. I do not know why."

Alan had been holding his hand over the papers which he had thrust into his pocket; he went back into the smaller library and spread them under the reading lamp to examine them. But, as he looked the pages over now, chagrin. They did not contain any narrative concerning Benjamin Corvet's life; they did not even relate to a single event. They were no narra-They were-in his first examination of them, he could not tell what they were.

They consisted in all of some dozen sheets of irregular size, some of which had been kept much longer than others, a few of which even appeared fresh and new. The three pages which Alan thought, from their yellowed and worn look, must be the oldest, and which must have been kept for many years, contained only a list of names and addresses. The remaining pages, which he counted as ten in number, contained nearly a hundred brief clippings from newspapers; the clippings had been very carefully cut out, they had been pasted with painful regularity on the sheets, and each had been dated across its face dates made with many different pens and with many different laks, but all in the same irregular handwriting as the letter which Alan had received from Benjamin Corvet.

Alan, his fingers numb in his disappointment, turned and examined all these pages; but they contained noth-ing else. He read one of the clippings, which was dated "Feb. 1912."

"The passing away of one of the oldest residents of Emmet county occurred at the poorfarm on Thursday of last week. Mr. Fred Westhouse was one of four brothers brought by their parents into Emmet county in 1846. He established himself here as a farmer and was well known among our people for many years. He was nearly the last of his family, which was quite well off at one time, Mr. He read another:

He read another:

"Born to Mr. and Mrs. Hal French, daughter, Saturday afternoon last. Miss Vera Arabella French, at her ar rival weighed seven and one-half ounds."

This clipping was dated, in Benjamin Corvet's hand, "Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Aug. 1914." Alan put it aside in bewilderment and amaze and took up again the sheets he first had looked oldest, yellowed pages had been first written, it was plain, all at the same time and with the same pen and ink, and each sheet in the beginning had contained seven or eight names. Some these original names and even the addresses had been left unchanged, but most of them had been scratched out and altered many times-other and quite different names had been substituted; the pages had become finally almost illegible, crowded scrawls, rewritten again and again in Corvet's cramped hand. Alan strained forward, holding the first sheet to the Alan seized the clippings he had looked at before and compared them swiftly with the page he had just read; two of the names-Westhouse and on Corvet's list. They were most of this list. Suddenly he grasped the ern end of the lake; a very few upon other pages of the list and looked other lakes-Superior and Huronthem through for his own name; but but most were upon or very close to it was not there. He dropped the Lake Michigan. These people lived by sheets upon the table and got up and began to stride about the room.

relate in some way to one thing; they must have deeply, intensely concerned Benjamin Corvet's disappearance and his present fate, whatever that might be, and they must concern Alan's fate as well. But in their disconnection, their incoherence, he could discern no common thread. What conceivable bond could there have been uniting thing to go upon, though Luke now Benjamin Corvet at once with an old was forever still, and his pockets had man dying upon a poorfarm in Emmet county, wherever that might be, and with a baby girl, now some two years old, in Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin? He called Wassaquam into the liorary and brought the lists and clip-

"No, Alan. I have seen Ben have them, and take them out and put them back. That is all I know." "Do you know any of these peo-Constance Sherrill, on the following afternoon, received a telephone call from her father; he was coming home earlier than usual, he said: if she had planned to go out, would she wait un-til after he got there? The afternoon's mail was upon a stand in the hall. She turned it over, looking through it—invitations, social notes. She picked from among them an envelope ad-dressed to herself in a firm, clear hand, which, unfamiliar to her, still queerly startled her, and tore it open. Dear Miss Sherrill," she read.

"I am closing, for the time being, the house which, for default of other ownership, I must call mine. The pos-sibility that what has occurred here would cause you and your father anxiety about me in case I went away without telling you of my intention is the reason for this note. But it is not the only reason. I could not go away without telling you how deeply I appreciate the generosity and delicacy you and your father have shown me in spite of my position here and of the fact that I had no claim at all upon you. The Things From Corvet's Pockets.

"Miss Constance Sherrill, Harbor Springs, Michigan." The address, in large scrawling letters, was written across the brown brought from the post office in the little resort village only a few moments before. The paper covered a shoe box, crushed and old, bearing the name of land on the chart—the little towns and outside wrapping, was carefully tied "Not after June 12; then to Harbor Springs, Mich. Ask some one of that; e sure the date; after June 12."

Constance, trembling, unrolled the scarf; now coins showed from a fold, next a pocketknife, ruined and rusty, next a watch—a man's large gold watch with the case queerly pitted and worn completely through in places, and last a plain little band of gold of the size for a woman's finger—a wedding ring. Constance, gasping and, with fingers shaking so from excitement that she could scarcely hold these objects, picked them up and ex-amined them—the ring first.

It very evidently was, as she had immediately thought, a wedding ring once fitted for a finger only a trifle less slender than her own. One side of the gold band was very much worn, not with the sort of wear which a ring gets on a hand, but by some dif-ferent sort of abrasion. The other side of the band was roughened and side still bore the traces of an inscription. "As long as we bo . . . all alive," Constance could read, and the date, "June 2, 1891."

"You mean you want me to marry you—at once, Henry?"

POSITION AND SIZE OF GRID IMPORTANT

Determine Value of Negative Potential Necessary to Reduce the Plate Current to Zero.

using a three-electrode vacuum tube in a radio set it is preferable to maintain the grid negative with respect to the filament in order to require the minimum amount of energy control of the plate circuit.

The relative position of the grid with respect to the filament and the plate and the size of the mesh of the grid, determine the value of E. E is the negative potential which must be applied to the grid in order to reduce the plate current to zero. The value of F, which is the positive grid potential that will cause the maximum or saturation current to flow in the plate circuit, is also determined by the rela-tive position of the grid with respect to the filament and plate. If the grid is of very fine mesh, the value of E is small because the electrons in pass-ing through the small mesh of the grid on their journey from the fila-ment to the plate will negatively charge the grid and will be repelled. Similarly a small positive charge applied to a fine mesh will tend to accelerate the velocity of the electrons.

In case of a very coarse mesh grid, the electrons can pass through the aptures in the grid without coming in a point of the curve that symmetrical so close to the charge on it and a changes in grid potential will cause a crease in plate current equal to B-D. During the remaining fourth quar-ter of a cycle as the applied grid potential varies from a maximum positive value at M to zero at N, the plate circuit current varies from a value S

Assuming that the characteristic curve as shown in Fig. VIII and Fig. IX was with a potential of 40 volts on the plate current is to be reduced to zero by a varia-tion of plate voltage—with no poten-tial applied to the grid—the plate voltage must be reduced to zero or a reduction of 40 volts must be made. If the 40 volts is maintained on the plate and a negative potential of E-O is applied to the grid, it will reduce the current to zero.

Suppose O-E represents five volts. It can be seen then that a change of five volts in grid potential will accomplish the same result that 40 volts will in the plate circuit. The ratio of the voltage change in the plate cur rent is called the factor of the tub and is denoted by the letter "K."

In the tube just discussed the am-pilification factor would be 40 divided by five or eight. The amplification factor of the tubes available teur use at present is usually between 4 and 10. The amplification factor is tive positions of the elements in the tube

Referring to Fig. VIII, O-G, is the current that will flow in the plate circuit when there is no potential applied to the grid. Suppose a positive potential as O-I is applied to the grid.

Suppose a positive potential as O-I is applied to the grid.

A negative potential of O-H is now applied to the grid where O-H is equal in value to O-I, but opposite in sign. The application of the negative potential when applied to the grid will made at the Hippodrome. The graves registration service of the army, which had the work of returning these bodies in charge, did an almost superhuman task. But this service could not give the comradely human touch to the handling of these bodies after they reached the United States that seemed due them. No organization was so well suited to perform the last rights of honor and respect for these soldier dead as was the American Legion. The men of the Legion took upon themselves the obligation. Forty ship loads of bodies came to eastern ports during a period of two and a haif years. It was not always possible to have an elaborate service, because the arrivals were too frequent, but in every instance there was at least a prayer by a chaplain of the Protestant, Catholic or Jewish faith, an address by a prominent citizen or army officer and a rifle salute.

A number of times, however, the ervices were noteworthy. President larding delivered an address at Harding delivered an services arranged by the Legion, May 23, 1921, when the Princess Matolka arrived with 451 bodies. General Pershing and Senator Lodge spoke when the Somme and the Wheaton arrived, July 10, 1921, with 7,000 dead. The last cargo of bodies arrived in Brooklyn, in April, 1922, on the Cambrai. On that occasion, the body of Private Charles W. Graves. Company One-hundred and Seventeenth infantry. Thirteenth division, was borne on a caisson through the streets, lined with silent throngs, to the army base where simple ceremonies marked the close of the last public demonstration for America's returned dead.

AN EXAMPLE OF GOODYEAR VALUE

The 30 x 31/2 Goodyear Cross Rib Tire shown here alongside its companion, the 30 x 31/2 Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher, is a conspicuous example of Goodyear value.

The Goodyear Cross Rib has in it the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear.

It has a differently designed but longwearing tread, and it sells for considerably less money.

In the past five years more than 5,000,000 of these Goodyear Cross Rib Tires have been sold.

They have everywhere given remarkable service.

Their fine performance and known value have convinced thousands of motorists of the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

This illustrates a fact that is keeping many doctors busy these days—human bodies, like chaises, break down because some part isn't as

Very often it's because of ill-balanced food, lacking in some important element of nutrition. This is especially true of ills developed in childhood, and carried on through life.

Grape-Nuts, that world-famous, ready-to-eat cereal, brings the plan of building each part as strong as the rest—to serve human need. Grape-Nuts contains all the nutriment of those best of the field grains, wheat and barley, including the vital mineral elements, and it is a wonderful food for building and sustaining health and strength.

The delicious flavor and crispness of Grape-Nuts make it a welcome dish whenever you're hungry.

THE 40th LEONARD YEAR

Why Leonard Leads

Leonard CLEANABLE Refrigerator

Recently a test was made to compare the cold-retaining power of various refrigerators. United similar conditions as to location and feing, it was found that the air in the Leonard Cleanable was from six to eight degrees colder than the air in the others. The Leonard leads in economy as well as in efficiency.

One out of every seven refrigerators sold is made by Leonard. We sell and recommend the Leonard. Call at our store and see this marvel of effi-ciency and economy. Why not today?

Coro..er's Jury at Eagle Harbor Do Not However, Find Evidence of Foul Play.

Detroit-"The glorious Easter Day once more is near at hand. With its coming, victory over death once more is fully realized."

Thus George W. Jerome Dickinson, 20 years old, acting rector of the Episcopal Church in Ontonagon, Mich. wrote to his family at 686 Atkinson avenue, on April 7. It was his last Three days later he disapletter. peared. On June 21 his body was found on Keweenaw Point, on the shore of Lake Superior.

Dickinson had intended to begin his studies for ordination next fall He had been a student at Northern High School, leaving there about three years ago to study pharmacy at the Cass Technical High School. He completed his course there and was a registered pharmacist, for a time in the employ of Grace Hospital.

He went to Ontonagon last fall to complete his high school credits.
When he arrived, he found that the Church of the Ascension, the only Episcopal church in town, was with out a rector. He offered to supply the pulpit and, after conducting sev-, eral services, the congregation was so greatly impressed that they urged to take charge of the parish. He took a conspicuous part in the rusade against the liquor traffic. One of the first theories advanced to account for his disappearance was that he had been disposed of by moon shiners. This theory was discounted at the inquest, held in Eagle Har-bor, where the coroner's jury found no evidence of foul play.

True Detective Stories SHADOW OF EVIL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc. "LL be back in a few minutes," said Henry Goudie, cashier of the Bank of Liverpool, to one of his associates. "I'm just going across the street to get a bite of lunch." An hour later the officials of the bank began to wonder where Goudie was, but the fact that his hat still remained upon its accustomed peg indicated that the cashier wasn't far away, and that he would soon return. But at the closing hour that afternoon Goudle was still missing—and when an auditor went over his books it was discovered that a hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds (some $850,000) had also disappeared!

Inquiry at the house where Goudie had lodged failed to bring to light any trace of the missing cashier, who had left home that morning as usual, apparently without any intention of being away over night. His clothes were in their accustomed position, and even his tollet articles sere untouched. In fact, if it hadn't been for the disbank, the police would have searched the hospitals, on the theory that Goudle had met with an accident.

But, as Frank Freest, superintendent of Scotland Yard, pointed out, it was hardly likely that a bank official and $850,000 would vanish at one and the same time without some connecbetween the two events.

"As luck would have it." continued Froest, one of the ablest detectives in England, "Goudle has chosen the simplest manner in which to make his escape—the easiest from his point view and the most difficult from the standpoint of the police. It is comparatively simple to find a man who lays his plans in advance. You can usually trace his baggage or his railway tickets. But Goudle just walked out to lunch and lost himself somewhere. He left only one clue behind him-his hat. Therefore, working on the assumption that a hatless man would be quite conspicuous, and that Goudie, knowing this, would immediately puranother hat. Freest made the rounds of the shops near the Liverpool bank. From the clerk in one of them he obtained the information that a man answering to the description of the missing cashier had purchased a floth cap of a distinctive pattern only I few moments after noon on the day that Goudle vanished.

By means of this clue and a detailed report on Goudie's appearance Freest soon had every man connected with Scotland Yard searching for the absconding cashier. But it was several weeks before he was located and captured in a lodging house in the north of England.

However, the arrest of the man who looted the Bank of Livernool did not by any means close the case.

Even before he was discovered, Freest had found out that Goudie had been in the habit of playing the races -patronzing a clique of "hand-book who had played upon his cu pidity in such a manner that they, and not he, had secured the benefits of his dishonesty. In order to recover the money. Freest therefore had to round up the members of this gambling ring and force them to disgorge. It developed that the leader of the organization, sensing a way in which to make a lot of money, without run ning any risk, had approached Goudle with an account of a "fixed race" which was to be run at Epsom Downs, and that the cashier, believing that he could clean up a fortune in a single day, had taken twenty-five thousand nounds from the bank, falsifying the ccounts to conceal the shortage. The man's credulity is evident from the fact that he placed the money at odds of 20 to 1, which meant that he stood to win half a million pounds, or $2. 500,000 if his horse came in first. Of course, no bookmaker could afford to pay a bet of this size-but Goudle overlooked this fact and cheerfully wagered his "borrowed" capital. The horse naturally failed to win, and, in an effort to recoup his losses, the cash ier commenced systematically to loor the bank's funds.

One of the odd features of the case which Freost discovered, by blind luck, Gouldle one day placed a big bet on a horse that won. When he went to collect his bet, with the firm intention of squaring his accounts with the bank, he was casually informed that the wager had not been placed in time, and he was advised to put it on another "sure tip," which lost. When his defalcations reached a point when it was hopeless to attempt further con cealment from the bank authorities, "went out to lunch." Gouldle

It didn't take Freest long to disover that, in planning a round-up of the gambling gang he was tackling one of the most difficult jobs of his career. One by one Freost picked up the various threads of the tangled case. One by one he followed the various at least one of which led to the suicide of a member of the bookmakers' clique. But, in addition to seeing that Gouldle was sent to prison for ten years. Freest secured evidence which forced the return of all but a small amount of money which had been taken from the Bank of Liverpool and placed upon horses, which, save in a single instance, had no chance whatever to win realizing it, we are ap-proaching the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, which, as every school child knows, took place on the Fourth of July, 1776. To some of us that historic event seems already in the dim and distant past-others find it difficult to convince themselves that the marvelous changes throughout the world following in its wake could have been achieved in so short a space of time. This year the Declaration marks its one hundred and forty-sixth year but already the scenes are being se for a glorious celebration of its sesquicentennial, outdoing in impressive mag-nificence even the epochal Centennial celebration of 187€

By natural sequence, this celebration is to be held again in the city of Philadelphia as the repository of all the historic backgrounds and landmarks. Here in Philadelphia is Inde-pendence hall, centering the group of beautiful colonial buildings stretching a whole block on lower Chestnut street, fully restored and preserved. Here the Continental congress held its sessions and here John Hancock in-scribed his name in his big, bold hand so King George could read it without using spectacles. Here is the famous Liberty bell that proclaimed the glad tidings "throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." Here are the quaint desks and well-worn chairs used by the fathers, and here is one of the original drafts of our American Magna Charta in the fine penmanship of Thomas Jefferson with his own in-terlineations and alterations. Here are innumerable heritages instinct with the sacred memories of self-sacrificing patriots to whom we are indebted for the achievement of our liberty.

The enduring character of the republic thus established has indeed been vindicated by the severest tests and most fiery ordeals-by the ravages of civil war and the burdens borne for the down-trodden of other lands. Now after a conflict of intensified flerceness such as the world never before witnessed, the principles of liberty upon which our government has been build and developed shine forth mor clearly than ever as the beacon light of new nations whose most ardent as piration, however envious, is to emulate our progress and prosperity, if 150 years, nay, if most of this advance has been made in the last 50 years of the 150, what may we not look for in the next 50 years? And how can we guide ourselves better in looking ahead than by reviewing what has been done through a survey of past achievements in the fields of science, art and indus

This, then, suggests the theme of what is planned for the Sesqui-centennial exhibition as the capstone of the 1920 celebration of the Declaration of Independence. It is to be a great world exposition illustrating particularly the progress made in the 50 years elapsed since the Centennial exposition, time things then undreamed of have been brought to pass-the automobile the airplane the submarine the phonograph, the telephone, radio

The total appropriation for the De partment for the year is $350,000. In seven months the department turned in to the treasury $75,367.90 from oil inspection fees, $7,140 from other inspection fees and $547 from permit fees. In addition there was turned in from the sales of materials and confiscated liquors the sum of $6,115.74. This makes a total of $89,170.64 in cash turned into the

In addition the department recovered and returned to owners automobiles valued at $57,000 and other stolen goods valued at $47,000—a total of $104,000. Fines in criminal cases resulting from the work of the state police amounted to $15,705.70 and costs in these cases were $3,536.91.

Add all of these items together brings a total of $212,413.25, which more than offsets the appropriation for the seven months.

During this time the state police made 1,673 investigations, gave as-sistance to local officers in 983 cases, gave assistance to the public in 872 cases, gave assistance in 347 automobile accidents, extinguished 34 fires, gave first aid in 11 cases, seized 102 pieces of gambling apparatus and 23,962 gallons of liquor and mash and performed services in behalf of practically all state institutions.

During February the Department of Public Safety turned over $6,734 in inspection fees. Fines in connection with the 131 arrests made by the state police amounted to $4,905 and costs to $473. Liquor totalling 4,348 gallons was confiscated. There were 932 cases of assistance rendered to officials and to the public.

STATE POLICE GUARD UNCLE SAM'S MONEY

Owing to the great amount of money coming into the internal revenue office in Detroit during the middle of March, Collector Fred L. Woodworth asked Colonel Roy C. Vander cook, commissioner of the Depart ment of Public Safety, for an armed guard to protect the office. His request was granted and men from the Michigan State Police safeguarded the receipts during the rush days. Many millions of dollars a day come into the internal revenue office at this time and while most of this is the form of checks, a fortune in cur rency also is taken in. This made the precaution advisable.

Refore asking for the state police guard, Collector Woodworth had ask-ed the war department to furnish a squad of soldiers 'rom Fort Wayne but the army officials did not think his good policy.

ARSONIST ARRESTED IN CASE TWO YEARS OLD

Francis J. Miller, dealer in secondhand automobiles at Jackson, was re cently arrested by state police on charge of being implicated in the burning of the race track grandstand at Jackson two years ago. Automo biles belonging to 'filler were stored in the building. Patient following up of the case by the state police result ed in accumulating evidence sufficien to bring the case to court.

Several other mysterious arson cases have recently been solved in like manner by state police effort an patience. During the slump in trade there was a temptation to realize on goods through fire insurance rather than merchandising. Ultimately the cost of such crimes fell on the people of the whole state through increased cost of fire insurance premiums.

TROOPER ON HANDCAR CAPTURES FUGITIVE

Convict J. Gentry, ar inmate Marquette prison but employed on work outside the walls of the institution, took advantage of the trus placed in him to escape. Immediately the force of state police which has been stationed at the prison set out in pursuit. Trooper Bowen used a handcar on the railroad as a means of following Gentry and captured the escaped convict before the latter had got ten miles away.

WHY SUFFER FROM RHEUMA. TISM.

Do you know that nine out of every en cases of rheumatism are simply heumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internat treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to any one afflicted with phatmatical. 6-29-6 with rheumatism.

RECOMMENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S Join TABLETS.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have been used by my husband and myself off and on for the past five years. When my husband goes away from home he my husband goes away from home he always takes a bottle of them along with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they fix me up fine," writes Mrs. Newton Vreeland, Minoa, N. Y. Take these tablets when troubled with constipation or indigestion and they will do you good.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC AND DI-ARRHOEA REMEDY.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand during the hot of the summer months. It is almost sure to be needed, and when that time comes, is worth many times its cost. Ruy it now.
